West Virginia Division of Rehabilitation Services (DRS)

The Division of Rehabilitation Services (DRS) is a comprehensive employer assistance program for business owners and employers. Our goal is to assist business owners and employers with disability-related issues. DRS can provide you with critical business options in the areas of staffing, education, tapping into financial incentives associated with hiring a person who has a disability, or insuring accessibility to your goods and services.

Staffing assistance for your business

Business owners and employers can benefit from the following free DRS business solutions:

- Recruitment: Our Employment Specialists will match businesses with qualified job seekers from the DRS consumer database. Email your vacancy announcements directly to DRS staff for statewide or local distribution.
- On-the-Job Training: Funding is available to employers through DRS to assist with the costs associated with training a qualified job seeker from our consumer database.
- Job Try-Out Program: This no-cost trial work opportunity program is an opportunity for job-ready applicants to perform standard work requirements and display work skills for an employer.
- Accessibility Assessments: Employee turnover is expensive. It is more cost-effective to keep an existing employee who develops or incurs a disability as part of your workforce by making reasonable workplace accommodations. Employment Specialists can provide:
 - Job Analyses
 - Site Evaluations
 - Jobsite Accommodation Consultation
- Placement Services Program: DRS contracts with community vendors to provide services that help employees become acclimated to or increase their ability to perform the duties of their job. Contracted services may include job coaching, job retention, social skills training, job placement, etc.
- Job Retention Services: A business may have a great employee whose work performance has changed due to gradual loss of hearing or vision, accident, or illness, or any other physical or mental impairment that affects work performance. DRS can assess individual needs, assist with expenses for vocational rehabilitation and recommend workplace solutions to retain an employee who is at risk of losing his or her job because of a disability.

Educational assistance for your employees

DRS can help your business and your employees to develop a broader understanding of the diversity in today's workplace and marketplace, especially as it relates to understanding the needs of an employee with a disability or a customer with a disability. DRS can provide education and training focused on:

- Disability awareness
- Disability etiquette
- Sensitivity training

Tax credits and hiring incentives

In today's highly competitive global market, the bottom line is the most important factor for business owners and employers.

There are three federal tax incentives available to assist employers with the cost of accommodations for employees with disabilities and to assist with the cost of making their place of business accessible to employees and to customers with disabilities.

- Work Opportunity Tax Credit: Federal tax credit for employers who hire employees with disabilities through DRS. The credit applies to the first $6,000 of wages paid. (IRS Form 8850)
- The Disabled Access Tax Credit: Geared toward eligible small businesses to meet any increased expenses incurred in complying with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The allowable amount of the tax credit is equal to 50 percent of the expenditures in excess of $250, but not more than $10,250. (IRS Form 8826 — Disabled Access Credit, or Part 1, Line 1 of Form 3800 — General Business Credit)
- The Barrier Removal Deduction: A business may deduct up to $15,000 per tax year for making its premises or public transportation vehicles more accessible. (Title 26, IRS Code, Section 190)

Contact a DRS employment specialist
